PROTECTING YOUR HEALTH INFORMATION

What you need to know about the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act

Identify theft. Credit card fraud. Computer viruses. Concern for the privacy and security of personal information has never been greater. Our concern for the safety and security of your personal healthcare information has never been taken more seriously.

While we have always gone to great lengths to ensure the privacy of your personal health information, we will soon be getting additional help from the Federal government in the form of new regulations. These regulations will help standardize privacy and security requirements across the country and across all different type of healthcare organizations.

New Regulations Passed-
These regulations are part of the Healthcare Insurance Portability and Accountability Act, HIPAA for short. HIPAA does three primary things:

1. It helps standardize and simplify the way healthcare organizations exchange electronic healthcare data.
2. It provides consumers with additional protections for getting and maintaining health insurance coverage, although, it does not guarantee coverage.
3. It creates new security rules to ensure the safety and privacy of individual health information and medical recor s.

HIPAA Ensures the Privacy and Security of Individual Health Information-
Currently, individual state laws govern the use and disclosure of this information, creating many inconsistencies and gaps in the way you health information is protected. HIPAA sets minimum security and privacy standards for healthcare organizations to follow. If a state has more stringent privacy and security laws, then those would be followed instead. In addition, HIPAA sets heavy penalties for violations of these standards and the misuse of personal health information.

Defining Individual Health Information-
Every time you go to see a doctor, or admitted to the hospital, fill a prescription or send a claim to an insurance company, a record is made of your confidential health information. This type of information is referred to as individually identifiable health information and is the type of information regulated by HIPAA. It can be in any formation-electronic, paper or oral.

Healthcare organizations that collect and manage this type of information and are therefore covered by these regulations including physicians, physical therapists, mental health professionals, dentists, chiropractors, optometrists, podiatrists, and others; hospitals, health plans, employers, healthcare clearinghouses such as claims processors; and other healthcare organizations who conduct administrative and financial transactions.

Added Control over Health Information-
Under HIPAA, you have new rights to understand and control how you health information is used:

- Right to Education-Healthcare providers and health plans are required to provide you with a clear written explanation of how they intend to use and disclose your information.
- Right to Access Medical Records-You have the right to see and get copies of your medical records, request changes and receive a history of non-routine disclosures of your personal health information.
- Right of Consent-Healthcare providers are required to obtain prior consent before sharing personal health information for purposes other than treatment, payment and healthcare operations.
- Right to Rec urse-You have the right to file a formal complaint if you believe that violations of the regulations were made.

In general, HIPAA tries to find a balance between protecting your privacy and allowing the appropriate flow of information between healthcare providers that is necessary for you to access care and receive quality healthcare services.

Protecting Your Medicines At Home

Today, the abuse of prescription medicines is more widespread than the abuse of traditional street drugs, excluding marijuana. In fact, the number of people who abuse prescription medicines is approximately three times the number of people who abuse cocaine[1]. Thus we all need to be vigilant in protecting our own medicines from abuse.

The most commonly abused medicines are opioid pain relievers, sedatives, and stimulants. Abusers obtain these drugs by fraud and by theft. Fraud includes forging prescriptions and faking illnesses in order to trick doctors into writing prescriptions. Thieves not only burglarize pharmacies, they also steal from individual patients, such as yourself.

Sometimes this person is a family member or caregiver-someone you would never suspect. Here are some steps you can take to:

Protecting Your Medicines

- Do not share your medicines with anyone.
- Lock medicines and medical supplies, such as syringes, in a locking cabinet and secure the key.
- Always store medicines in a cool, dry place protected from light.
- Do not store prescriptions drugs in the bathroom medicine cabinet. A bathroom is hot and Humid; bathroom medicine cabinets are rarely locked.
- Do not store medicines in the glove compartment of your car or in the kitchen cabinets. Here, too, heat and moisture degrade medicines and may make them unsafe.
- Keep medicines out of direct sunlight and away from a radiator or heating duct.
- Make sure all bottles are tightly closed.
- Do not store medicines inside purses, coat pockets, nightstands, or other locations easily accessed by others.
- Store all medicines in their original containers with the original labels intact.
- Do not store medicines in the refrigerator or freezer unless directed by your pharmacist.

Protecting Yourself

- Never take medicine in the dark. Always turn the light on and wear your glasses if Required for reading.
- Read the label each time to check the dosage before opening the bottle.
- Examine the medicine itself before taking it. Check for capsules or tablets that differ from the others in the bottle.
- If the appearance or the odor of the medicine has changed, check with your pharmacist before taking it.

- Follow the directions carefully. Special instructions, such as " Do not take with grapefruit" or " Take two hours before or after meals, " are given because they affect how the medicine works or how it affects your body.
- Never use medicines after they have expired. Expiration dates are listed with EXP and a date. If only a month and year are listed, the medicine can be used until the last day of that month; that is , "EXP 9/2019" means the medicine can be taken until the last day of September 2019.
- Inspect your medicine storage cabinet at least once a year. Ask yourself these questions:

Do I need the medicine?
Is it in its original container with the label firmly attached?
Is there an expiration date on the label?
Are my doctors and my pharmacist aware of all the medicines I am taking?

Protecting Your Loved Ones

Each year accidental poisonings from medicines and household chemicals kill about 30 children and prompt more than 1 million calls to the nation's Poison Control Centers. The number to reach your Poison Control Center is 1-800-222-1222.

- Avoid taking medicines in front of children. Children like to imitate grown-ups.
- Use child-resistant packaging on your medicines whenever possible-it saves lives.
- Replace child-resistant caps securely after each use.
- Never call medicine " candy," call it " medicine."
- Do not discard any medicines, including patches, in the wastebasket where children can find them.
- If you are giving medicine to a loved one, check the label every time you give it.
- Keep track of doses to ensure that you are correctly following the directions on the bottle label.

*If you ever suspect that anyone has stolen your prescription medicine, report it to your local police department. You may save the thief from tragedy... you may even save a life.

Principles of Medical Practice

At Comprehensive Pain Care, P.C. we are dedicated to providing the best medical care possible. We feel that the practice of pain medicine (algology) requires unique characteristics of the physicians, nurses, psychologists, counselors and other caregivers that choose to devote themselves to this difficult area of healthcare. We all feel strongly that our patients deserve the best possible care. To that end, our physicians have developed a set of principles to guide our practice. We feel that it is our duty to adopt such guidelines to protect our patients from the many harmful influences that can impede their care in today's healthcare environment. The following standards define what we consider to be the essentials of honorable business conduct for physicians and other healthcare practitioners. Our physicians follow these principles and expect all employees of the Practice for Pain Medicine to adopt similar standards. (Parts of this set of standards were adopted from the American Medical Association's "Principle of Medical Ethics".)

1. A physician must be dedicated to providing competent medical series with compassion and respect for human dignity.

2. A physician shall openly tell the patient about appropriate treatment options, answer questions about medical risks and give the patient the current and accurate medical facts needed to make informed decisions about treatment.

3. A physician shall provide patients with information about other physicians and medical resources when this will benefit the patients.

4. A physician shall deal honestly with patients and colleagues, and strive to expose those physicians deficit in character or competence, or who engage in fraud or deception.

5. A physician shall practice within all confines of the law; but shall also recognize a responsibility to seek changes in those laws that are contrary to the best interest of their patients.

6. A physician shall respect the rights of patients, colleagues, and of other health professionals, and shall safeguard patient confidences within the constraints of the law.

7. A physician shall respect the rights of patients, staff and colleagues to have an office environment free from sexual or racially motivated harassment. Any sexually oriented activity between the staff and patients is unethical and will not be tolerated.

8. A physician shall care for patients without regard to sex, race, creed, color, sexual orientation or previous condition of servitude.

9. A physician shall continue to study; continually learn how to apply advanced scientific knowledge to the care of their patients.

10. A physician shall, except in cases of emergency, be free to choose to whom they deliver medical services.

11. A physician shall recognize their responsibility to participate in activities contributing to an improved community.

12. A physician shall recognize their own responsibility to their own and to their families' physical, mental and spiritual health.

13. A physician shall at times, for personal renewal and/or professional education, need to be away from his practice. During this time, the physician will arrange for appropriate coverage for his patients.

If you think that our physicians or staff is not adhering to these principles, if there is any concern that you have not been treated with compassion, dignity and respect, or if you feel in any way harassed or subjected to unethical treatment, please report your concerns to our practice manager immediately.

Treatment Agreement

I, _____, am requesting treatment from Dr. Taylor
(Print Your Name)
and staff for drug and/or alcohol dependence. As a condition of that treatment, I acknowledge the following items and agree to them.

I understand:

1. The staff believes that outpatient treatment provides a useful intervention for drug and alcohol addiction; however, no specific outcome can be guaranteed.
2. Treatment participation requires some basic ground rules. These conditions are essential for successful treatment. Violation of these rules can result in treatment termination.

I agree to the following:

a. I will arrive on time for appointments.
b. I will notify the office in advance if I am going to miss an appointment.
c. I will arrange for child care during my appointments.
d. At each visit I will be prepared to take a urine drug tests.
e. I will abstain from all drugs and alcohol except for those prescribed by my physicians.
f. I will report any drug or alcohol use to the staff or Dr. Taylor.
g. I understand that treatment consists of education and medication management by Dr. Taylor and that if I want to maximize my chances of successful treatment I will also engage in psychological counseling (Dr. Taylor will be happy to refer you to a counselor) and active involvement in a 12 step program (e.g., Alcoholics Anonymous, Narcotics Anonymous, Celebrate Recovery) is strongly encouraged.
h. I understand that some insurance programs require patients to be engaged in treatment with an addiction counselor or psychologist before they will pay for treatment or medications.

i. Treatment will be terminated if I attempt to sell drugs or encourage drug use by other patients.

j. Treatment may be terminated for the use of abusive language to the staff.

3. Confidentiality: All information disclosed in treatment is strictly confidential and may not be revealed to anyone outside the program staff without the written permission of the patient. The only exceptions are when disclosures are required or permitted by law. Those situations typically involve substantial risk of physical harm to oneself or to others, suspected abuse of children or the elderly or under a court order.

6. Accomplishing treatment goals requires the cooperation and active participation of patients and their families. Lack of cooperation by a patient may interfere substantially with Dr. Taylor's ability to render effective treatment. Under such circumstances, Dr. Taylor may discontinue services to the patient.

I certify that I have read, understand, and accept this Treatment Agreement and Consent to treatment by Dr. Taylor and staff.
